IS RULED BY HABIT.

Some Common But Curious Facts About Sleep.

That sleep is ruled by the habits of the individual is extremely evident. An instance is given in which a person who had taken passage on board a warship was rudely awakened by the morning gun, which startled him exceedingly. On succeeding mornings the gun woke him at first sharply, and then much more quietly, until at length he slept on without being disturbed at all in his slumber. The result is that while a social habit of life has become part and parcel of the daily routine, sleep is liable to be disturbed by even the slightest appeal which ordinarily wakes the individual in the exercise of his profession, while noises of much more grievous character fail to effect that result. The doctor wakes on the slightest agitation of his night bell, while the click of the needle awakes the tired telegraphist when a loud noise might fail. Sir Edward Codrington was serving in the early days of his naval experiences as signal lieutenant to Lord Hood at the battle of Trafalgar. His duty was that of watching and interpreting the signals sent by the line of battle, and his capacity he remained on deck for 18 or 19 hours out of the 24. Exhausted with the strain of watching, he went below to obtain sleep, and reposed soundly, undisturbed by any ordinary noise; yet whenever a comrade lightly whispered in his ear the word "Signal," he at once awoke, ready for duty. The cause of sleep is as yet a matter of scientific debate. In the present state of our knowledge there can be no absolute certainty in the matter.—Dr. Andrew Wilson, F. R. S. E., in Harper's Magazine.

GOT HIS JOB BACK.
Loser of the Fight Was Probably Winner in the End.
Owing to the illness of his regular boy, a young doctor engaged a new lad named Tommy Jones. Tommy was a "jewel" and when Joe, the fire page boy, was quite well again, the doctor was loth to let Tommy go. But Joe wanted to come back to his pleasant berth, and pleaded with his former employer. A new way out of the dilemma seemed to present itself, for the doctor said: "Joe, if you can put the other boy out you can have your job back."

"Do you mean that I must lick him?"
"That's about it."
"All right, sir."
With a sigh of relief, he returned to his surgery that night to meet a eight door was smashed to atoms, a marble clock on the mantelpiece was minus dial, glass and hands, while a hand-chair reposed on three legs. But Joe was in victorious possession, nursing a swollen cheek.
"Tommy's gone, sir," he said, with a grin.—Weekly Telegraph.

A Definition.
A blue jay; one who has been buried.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

murders Go Free.

It is alleged that the death penalty is rarely enforced in Germany, Austria, Denmark or Sweden. In New York, out of 12 murderers escape without any punishment, and in the United States only one murderer in 50 suffers capital punishment.

Natural Supposition.
Was the milky way spilled when the great dipper upset?—L. A. W. Bulletin.

The Grape Cure.

One of the most splendid cures for all ills in Europe is the grape cure, practiced in Germany, and it is said that anyone taking the treatment drops off the wear and tear of five years—actually removes himself by so much. The sanitarians where this treatment is given are beautifully and healthfully situated and comfortably appointed. The patient is given nothing but unfermented grape juice for a period of four weeks—beginning with a generous amount, decreasing to a minimum allowance (as little as the system will bear without great weakening), and gradually increased to the first amount.

At the head of columns we place the names of the State Democratic nominees. Stone was dropped on the 25th ballot and on the 26th ballot the vote stood Goebel 560, Hardin 531.

OUR POSITION.

It is useless for THE ADVOCATE to announce to its readers that it will support the nominee of the Democratic party.

THE ADVOCATE has always been Democratic, so if displeased would have but one of two things to do: Stand by and uphold the party by casting our vote for and using our influence in favor of the nominees or by turning our back on those great and grand principles of Democracy, sacrificing every doctrine inculcated in party platform, voting with and using influence for the success of a party, which according to our reasoning, has brought suffering beyond estimation to the poor and has become a mighty backing force to the powers that corrupt and crush the will of the people.

Such a transmutation from party loyalty finds no place in our ponderings.

We entered the campaign with a choice; for our candidate we contended. We did it honestly, faithfully and find ourselves defeated. We knew all the while that two candidates of the three must be defeated, and since our candidate was forced to yield to the inevitable with the other, it follows that we must yield to the dictation of that convention of which we were a part, and battle for its nominees so long as they are Democratic standard bearers.

Organized Democracy is far preferable to organized Republicanism, and if we would have an organized party, one that can win battles, we must stand for it.

COUNCILMEN.

We can have a fair and just primum to-morrow. Every man must learn to do his own voting; to lookout for honest, sober, discreet business men. Men who know right from wrong and who have the nerve to carry out their own convictions. We shall select our own candidates just this way and we know of no better way. Within the next few years there will be questions of vital importance before these representatives, and for this reason Mt. Sterling should have as Councilmen our very best men; men who have been tried and never found wanting.

In our own party there is no disagreement in the fact there is much feeling which finds expression in no double meaning language, but after a refreshing drink of ice cold lemonade these gentlemen doubtless will be sorry for what they have said, like the good Democrats that they are, will vote as their judgements dictate rather than according to their feelings.

Were it in our power we would wipe from the annals of political history that disgraceful convention held at Louisville, which lasted seven and a half days. Because we are for its nominees is no evidence our eyes are closed to right and just e.

Let every man vote his own mind in the city primary to-morrow. Mt. Sterling should have her best, her truest, her brainiest men as Councilmen, for when such men are needed at all they are needed badly.

Mr. James O'Connell, of this city, has announced for the Republican nomination for Representative in Montgomery and Monroe counties.

Death of Judge Quincy Ward.

Judge J. Q. A. Ward died at his home, near Paris, on Monday, June 20, 1899, a little after midnight. He was born and reared near Oxford, Scott county, and was a son of Cary A. Ward, deceased. He was about 61 years of age. He was educated at Georgetown College, being a graduate of the class of 1858. Among his class-mates were Judge Jas. E. Carrill, of Georgetown; Hon. John L. Peak, now of Kansas City; the late Judge Richard Reid, of Mt. Sterling, and Rev. George Varden, of Paris.

He road law with the late Marceline Polk, then of Georgetown. After graduating at the time, he located at Cincinnati for the practice of his profession.

He was married Nov. 30, 1868, to Miss Mary E. Miller, daughter of Mr. Jas. Miller, of Harrison county.

He subsequently moved to beautiful home near Paris.

He served four years as County Attorney in the county of his adoption; also represented the county in the State Legislature in 1873-4. He subsequently was a Judge of the Superior Court of Kentucky. Whatever position of honor and trust he filled he did his duty. He was an able lawyer, forcible speaker, and was a prominent and useful member of the Presbyterian church.

"Quincy" Ward, as he was familiarly called by his friends, was a gentleman in every sense of the word, and he had hundreds of friends in Scott county and in Kentucky who will hear of his death with deep regret.

He was a brother of Mr. Edwin Ward, of Newtown vicinity, a full brother of Mr. Columbus Ward, of Oxford, and a step brother of Mr. James Harvey Moore, of Georgetown.

Judge Ward has not been forgotten here at Mt. Sterling, where he has appeared in the courts, demonstrating his training and great powers.

A hearty appetite does not always indicate a healthy condition. It is not the quantity of food which is eaten but the quantity which is assimilated, which determines the actual value of the food consumed.

If the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition cannot convert the food into nourishment, and into blood, then the food is an injury instead of a benefit.

For all disorders of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition, there is a certain remedy in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It removes clogging obstructions. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves, enriches the blood and builds up the body. It is a flesh-forming, muscle-making preparation, making firm flesh instead of fleshy fat. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky, or intoxicant of any kind, and is equally free from opium, cocaine and all narcotics.

Mt. Sterling Gets It.

We have tried ever since we have been in business to get a first-class coffee at a reasonable price that would give entire satisfaction, and we feel that we have more than accomplished our aim in our 12¢ cent bulk coffee. We have sold a barrel of 150 pounds every week for nine weeks and have never had a pound returned or complained of. We sell it on a strict guarantee, buy a dollar's worth, try it a few meals, and if it does not give entire satisfaction your money refunded and no charge for what you have used.

Facts and Observations,

On Wednesday Trimble started on a two day's trip to Sharpsburg, Bethel and Sherburne. After crossing Hinkston bridge he saw evidences of a heavy rain. On inquiry he learned that on Saturday, June 24, a very heavy rain had fallen, extending for several miles around the bridge, Sharpsburg and Bethel. There were four distinct hall storms, with heavy rain and lightning all or which did much damage to live stock, crops and land. Wm. Triplett's large tobacco barn was blown to pieces, and we bear he lost his crop of last year's tobacco. Lightning killed a fine mare and mule valued at $225 belonging to Brock Gillaspie, and a yearling mule for Walter Sharp. Hall mule injured tobacco and corn for several miles, especially toward Bethel.

In the pike near Wm. Canan's a'd the blacksmith shop the creek ran into the bed of buggies and the mts. were much washed. After an exchange of courtesies with friends in town we proceeded via Sam Ralls' toward Bethel.

Called at Richard Donaldson's at 11:20 and accepted the invitation to refresh ourselves. At the table we met Mr. Donaldson and wife (who is a sister of James and Wm. Shront), their children, Mr. Geo. E. Donaldson and wife, Mrs. Sam Ralls and daughters, Misses Minnie and Nannie. Such events are bright spots in the life of an editor, although prudence is required when a man with a rebellious stomach sits down to such a bountiful and tempting spread.

Mr. Alvin Evans was not at home. His wife is a cousin of Mrs. Duty of our city.

Daniel Hurst told the writer that his wife, formerly Miss Rosa Swett, now of Hazelgreen, was sick. We recalled our school days together when about 18 years ago we played under the beech and chestnut trees in the school yard, and for a change applied ourselves to the attainment of knowledge. They have three daughters, the youngest 12 years old, and a son aged 7 weeks—the finest boy in the country (the father says so). Mrs. Hurst has been an invalid for several years. The family are members of the Methodist church. After referring to some of God's promises to the afflicted and expressed hopes for her speedy recovery we drove on.

We conversed with Mr. James Whaley, admired her flowers, saw a field of the finest corn on our trip and stopped next at Mr. Stone's, in Bethel. Here we met the venerable A. G. Robinson, the father of Mrs. Stone, also Mrs. Cliff Hazelrigg, of Owingsville.

If we were to tell of all the stops made, and pleasant experiences, no doubt some or many of our readers would modestly exclaim: "Give us a rest!"

We paid our respects to the business and professional (M. D.) men of the town, received orders for work, and heard references to Goebelism, etc.

Tarrying awhile at J. W. Clukkendebard's, formerly of Clark county, who lives on the Allie Young farm, we reached Sherburne at 8 o'clock.

There are three stores here, owned by Mrs. Jones, Wm. Graham and J. S. Swart.

The Sherburne Roller Millers, owned by Goodpaster & Scott, has now a capacity of 60 barrels of flour, and will soon be remodeled with increased capacity.

The bridge across Licking is certainly a source of big revenue. A keeper is employed for $10 per month. The toll for a buggy is ten cents, to passers-free.

We returned to Bethel and partook of the hospitality of David Trumbo. Bethel has four stores owned by Joe W. Hawkins, J. P. Givens, Gosssett Bros. and Punch & Gatewood of Mt. Sterling, with Mr. Arasmith as manager.

Bethel and vicinity should be very healthful, for there are five doctors. These many should be able to nip disease in the bud, and prolong to the utmost the harvest of death.

We met the Misses Lane, of this city, who were visiting their sister, Mrs. Garrett, in the country.

We had a pleasant call with Mrs. Lee Vanarsdell, a daughter of Mrs. Judy, of this county.

We tarried a while at Sharpsburg, a prospective station on the famous double-track Black Diamond Railroad which, from present indications, will not be built—through Mt. Sterling.

Proceeding westward, like the course of empire, we paid our respects to some of the citizens, Pat Henry, J. B. Crouch, and others. From them we leisurely drove home in the cool of the day.

The wheat crop along the journey is said to be about two-thirds of an average. Much corn is backward and tobacco seems small. Blackberries are scarce. Most wheat has been cut but little if any threshed.

We saw two partridges and two "bunnies." Editors and other people do not see everything.

We are convinced that prosperity is coming—how long it will be delayed in arriving we can not tell. Of course

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other districts put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable.

For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable.

Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires a constitutional treatment.

A LETTER

From Another Boy in the Far Away Philippines.

Is a Sharpshooter and Has an Exciting Time.

Will Have Many Interesting Tales to Tell When He Gets Home.

Harry Berry received the following interesting letter from his cousin in the Philippines.

In the Field Near Pasay, P. I., April 23, 1899.

DEAR SLEEPY—Your letter received two days ago. I was very glad indeed to hear from you, but I may say I could not have answered the letter if you had not written this sentence. "However I know nothing about the affair." How people in the States, after reading accounts of battles, engagements, etc., we have with those "niggers" and seeing what kind of warfare they would carry on had they the chance, can call them down-trodden, poor ignorant people will always be a mystery to me. I am not finding fault with you for well I know how little time a studious school boy has to peruse the newspapers. But before I go further let me give you some facts as I know them, not as I have heard them.

When the Filipinos attacked us on the 4th of February they had an army of from twenty-five to thirty thousand men, armed with as good guns as we are three thousand regulars had and far better than our eleven thousand volunteers had. They were in a junction that would make Stanley's Darkest Africa look like a desert. We not only kept them from coming out of the jungle into the city, but drove them back at every point. Since that day every engagement we have had with them, they have greatly outnumbered us but we have always driven them before us and taken everything we have gone after. Take Malabon for example. They were behind what old warriors claim were the best broadswords they ever saw or read about and had two men to our one. We had to cross an opening of over half a mile to reach them. We crossed the opening, bayoneted them out of the trenches and killed them as they ran. Our losses were great, but had they been in our place, and we in theirs not a one of them would have reached the trenches. If they were the marksmen we are, an army of 50,000 Americans could not have whiped them. Thousands of them have fought until they died, what now can any soldier do? We well know what poor shots they are and often charge them where we would not think of charging any civilized enemy. Perhaps with you it is a nation of 71,000,000 fighting a nation of 17,000,000, but here it is 20,000 (our army is increasing every day) fighting 30,000.

With climate, location and everything except artillery in favor of the niggers I know we will never get the credit we are entitled to for whipping these niggers, simply because they are not an recognized nation. But the soldiers that fought the Spaniards here and in Cuba know that we have ten times harder fighting with the Filipinos than we had with them.

You ask me if I have been in any of the fighting. I know by this question that you did not read the daily papers. I was certainly with my regiment on the 5th of February and that day my regiment lost 25 percent of the killed and wounded. We were certainly in the warmest spot on this island that day. Since that day we have been in several scrapes, but our casualties have been light. The 7th of this month we were part of a flying squadron that went up on the lake and captured several cities.

Santa Cruz, the second largest city on the island was one of them.

This was the finest outing any troops on the island have had. We drank water from pure mountain springs, killed two hundred niggers, ate cariboo, cattle, hog, chickens, new tomatoes, corn, onions, radishes, potato; saw enough cocoanuts to damn the ocean from here to New York; enough tomatoes and other fruit to feed Stanley Lee a year. We simply had a great time. We killed the negroes at Santa Cruz. They were in the city three thousand strong, well entrenched and armed. We, 1500 strong, took the town by storm; lost two men.

In each regiment on the Island there are forty sharpshooters. I am one and was with the 150 that was on this trip.

If I could tell you the duties of a sharpshooter or scout without seeming to do some unnecessary puffing of myself, I would do so, but as I can't I will not attempt it. It is not the nicest position in the world, although sometimes it is very exciting. Possibly I can tell you tales with some truth in them when I get out of here that will make you think I had a charmed life or was one of God's chosen sons to escape with a non-punctured hide.

I am so unfortunate as to have to stay here another year. I will be only 28 years better off than Rip Van Winkle. In fact I won't be that much better off. Old Rip did have pleasant dreams and that's more than a man in this infernal region can have. Nightmares and visions of cut-throats negroes are as frequent as get out of here I will, with unshaken confidence, appeal to the Divine Arbitrator for the truth of the declaration that "I will never, never, never, see the Philippines Island again."

Am I homesick!

Well, yes, if wanting to see the United States is homesick.

What do you think I have been doing to make me disgusted with this country. Since the 3rd of February—seventy-two nights—I have slept with my shoes and clothes off only twice. Have worn the same clothes, washing them and going naked while they dried. Have seen all the hardships of an old warrior and am ready for a rest or change. Fighting is the easiest part of war. Strange as it may seem to you soldiers had rather fight than lie idle, guarding something and expecting an attack any time. If our officers would turn us loose and tell us to bring in the Filipino army, we certainly would do our best.

This town of Pasay is on the South of Manila, about half way between Manila and Paranaque. We expect to take Paranaque soon and certainly will have a hard fight. But the sooner the better, for then we will have the Filipinos whipped and they will know it. They are whipped now but they don't know it.

Roy is about five miles from here at San Pedro Macario. He is well and wants to go home as do nine out of ten of all soldiers here.

I must close. This surely is a puzzling, disconnected letter. It certainly is laboring under difficulties to write a letter here. The next time I will be better located. Write soon and tell me all the news. I am always glad to hear from you or any one in the States.

Your cousin,

JAMES SOUSLEY.

Victory For Temperance at Winchester.

An interesting temperance campaign closed in Winchester on Wednesday resulting in victory for the temperance people. In the colored ward the white men had a majority of 48, but in the four precincts which voted the majority against whitemen was 127. There was no election in the city. If this precinct had voted the majority would have been largely increased. It is said that the city council will refuse to issue license.

TWO GOOD CAT STORIES.

The Man Who Bought Pussies—A Queer Race.

Dr. J. B. Kinnaird, one of the popular physicians of Lancaster, says that in 1849 a European tobacco buyer was in Garrard, stopping at a house near the headwaters of Sugar Creek, an important shipping point, and one day an old man from Casey county, who happened to pass by, asked the European, whose name was Billy Walls, what he was buying, when he laughingly answered: "I am here buying cats to ship to England." "What are you paying for them?" "Ten cents apiece." The Casey man pursued his journey, and going to his native country he gathered up every cat within its borders that the owners would give up, and with his four-horse team passed through Lincoln and Boyle, adding to his stock of cats, till at last wooden cages full of felines were piled as high upon his old government wagon as they could be kept on, and arriving at Mr. Walls' boarding house in Garrard, he said: "I have brought you them there cats we were talking about, and I have in that old wagon 1,100 (eleven hundred) of the best rat-catchers in Kentucky." The European gentleman saw the joke was on him, and he handed over $110 amid the great laughter of the crowd that happened to be present. The cats were liberated at once, and they do say there hasn't been a rat in that portion of Kentucky since.

About 2 or 22 years later Judge French Tipton, now editor of the Richmond Paragraph, was running a paper in Lancaster, and extensively advertised a cat race. The day for the fun arrived, thousands of spectators from all over Kentucky and other states were present in the beautiful 290-acre blue-grass field of Hon. Malcolm Gill, near Lancaster, red, white and blue programmes were distributed among the throng, 305 cats were in line, and at the tap of the bell by President Tipton every cat shot out of the bag and went down the line swifter than any thoroughbred of to-day, and wonderful to record, the race was won by a cat the great-grandson of which was one of the original felines sold to the European buyer by the Casey county man 40 years prior thereto. Judge Tipton's cat race was one of the biggest and most laughable things in the history of the state, and will go down to future generations in the history of Garrard county.—Harrordsburg (Ky.) SIAMESE BOATS.

Expert Watermen of the East Travel in Houseboats.

The highways of Siam are the several large rivers that run through the country from north to south, and the innumerable khlongs (canals) which cross-section all its lower portion and connect the more important waterways. Save in the most northerly part of the country, there is practicaly no overland travel; while the occasional roads of southern Siam reach back towards the edge of the jungles, and are used but little, except by the tribes that bring their crude products to the settlements for barter and the very few that go into the jungle to hunt. The main arteries of travel are the watercourses, along which extend the villages, and where ample opportunity offers for the perfection of that skill with the paddle of which certainly every man, and apparently every woman and child, is possessed.

These Siamese are the most expert watermen of the east, and in their abandon on the river and perfect ease in handling their boats amidst difficulties, are equalled, in my judgment, only by the Esquimaux. The Malay, too, is a consummate waterman, but his craft is differently rigged. It is neither so cranky nor so shallow as that of the Siamese, and therefore the work of the latter appears to be the more difficult and the more suggestive of high-skill.

The Siamese boat is of many sizes and styles, but always beautifully, if simply, constructed of teak, and varyingly of braided lines. Perhaps the most common type seen on the larger rivers is the rrau chang, which, as fortune speeds the owner, is either a peddler's boat, filled with coconuts, betel-nut, bananas, or other of Siam's many varieties of fruit, or, as at Bangkok, becomes a ferry boat.

The rrau is a bit of twisted iron fastened to the top of a post 23 feet high, set on the port side of the stern; the oar is of the length with which we are familiar, and of straight blade. The oarsman stands on the starboard side of the stern, and sends the boat forward by pushing the oar from him, bringing it back with a familiar sailor's motion, without taking the blade out of the water. This much of the stroke is quite like that of the Venetian gondolier, but the body movement of the Siamese is much more rhythmic. As he comes forward on the push, the body moves smoothly, and the left foot clears the deck and swings gracefully in time with the oar.

Made a little larger, with a much more decided upward rake to the stern, and the rrau chang becomes the type used ordinarily for sailing, or is fitted for and may be propelled by three oars, exclusive of a helmsman, who does some rowing also. The sailboat type is that of the river small trader, and as such has a deckhouse of matting, making most excellent shelter for the family, which is an almost invariable accompaniment.

The river type next most common is the house boat, found from end to end of Siam, and the one commonly used by the traveler. 'Twas in such a craft I made the first stage of my journey from Bangkok towards the jungle. You can make yourself very comfortable under that barrel-shaped covering, made of a certain kind of stout palm leaf, called atap, which is protection against both sun and rain; but after a few days you would gladly welcome an opportunity to stretch your legs, if, as is most unusual in the khlongs, you could find a bit of soil covered with dense undergrowth or solid enough to walk upon.

The house boat is made in several sizes, the largest requiring eight oarsmen—four at bow and four in the stern. Such a size affords a small bit of deckroom at either end of the house—large enough, however—in which to swing your hand with murderous intent on the mosquitoes that are so big and numerous, persistent and vicious, that straightforward you forswear having ever before even heard of mosquitoes, though you may have spent many summers in the fastnesses of New Jersey or on the Long Island sound, or even journeyed in the Great Slav Lake district in the springtime—Harper's Weekly.

IN THE ONE CENT STORES.

Many Odd and Simple Things That Children Buy.

One-cent stores do not deal exclusively in one-cent things, but along with a variety of other articles of one kind and another there are offered many things at one cent each which children buy. Among the more curious things thus sold for a cent are eyeglasses. The frames of these eyeglasses are made of a single piece of metal, a very light and narrow strip of tin ingeniously bent. The bending is begun by forming the nose clip on one side; then the strip of metal is bent around to form the frame of one of the glasses, this bending bringing it around to meet the nose clip. From that point the metal is bent up and back over the eye opening just formed and back again and across to form the nose piece and spring of the eyeglasses; it is bent down and inward, to correspond to the opposite side, to a point where it will meet the other nose clip when it shall have been formed, and then it is rounded back and outward, and over, forming the top of the frame of the other glass. The strip is carried around until it comes to the point at which the handle would be attached on ordinary eyeglasses, and there it is bent abruptly outward and brought back to the glass frame again, the loop thus made forming a handle. From the base of the handle thus formed the strip is carried on around, forming the rest of the frame, and around and up to meet the metal where it was bent back to begin the forming of this second frame. There is still just a little bit of the metal strip left, and this is now bent down to form the second nose clip.

The glass used in glazing these eyeglasses is plain; some are fitted with white, some with red and some with blue glasses. A slight bending down of the thin metal strip that forms the frames suffices to hold the glasses in place, and each glass is held in securely by winding a bit of wire around the neck of its frame, at the point where the upper and the lower part of the frame meet at the nose clip. There is a cord attached to each pair of glasses. These eyeglasses are made in Germany. At a cent a pair they yield a fair profit to importer, jobber and retailer.

The one-cent eyeglasses are an old standby; new this year among one-cent goods is a little blown-glass duck, with its body drawn out to form a slender pipe an inch or two long, where the tail would otherwise be, this pipe being designed to be held in the mouth. There is an opening in the end of the pipe, and a very minute opening in the end of the duck's beak.

There is also a small opening in the top of the duck's head. This little hollow glass duck is filled with water and held by somebody who knows the trick of it with a finger over the hole in the top of the duck's head. Held thus and with the pipe stem in the mouth a tiny stream of water is expelled from the duck's beak. Then the holder lends it over to somebody who doesn't know the trick, and when he blows, the hole in the top of the duck's head being bigger than the one in the end of the beak he blows the water up through the top of the duck's head to fall upon his face. This toy comes also from Germany. The duck is lifelike in proportions, and when the price is considered it seems almost a marvel in glass blowing. Like the eyeglasses, the glass duck at a cent yields a fair profit to importer, jobber and retailer.

There is a large variety of one-cent goods, and these include nowadays many things that a few years ago were sold at five cents. The wooden one-cent goods are almost all made in this country; the metal and other goods retailed at that price are likely to be imported. Including those stores that sell some penny goods without making a specialty of them there are in the city thousands of stores in which one-cent goods are sold; and in the aggregate the amount of money paid for them is considerable.—N. Y. Sun.

A Sign of Wisdom.

If a man knows much, he wants to know more. His appreciation of knowledge shows itself in his desire to add to his stock. If he thinks he already has enough, he is ready to display his stores than to acquire more. It is the wise man who is always learning. Shallower intellects and those scantly supplied are prompter to show what they think they already know than to be gainers from those who are better informed.—S. S. Times.

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

MRS. S. M. IDOL

"Cancer is hereditary in our family, my father, a sister and brother, all died of this dreadful disease. My feelings may be imagined when the horrible disease made its appearance on my side. It was a malignant Cancer, eating inwardly in such a way as to penetrate the skin, and when I had lost the skill of the doctors, for their treatment did not good whatever, the Cancer growing worse all the while. Numerous remedies were used for it, but the Cancer grew still worse, and I soon saw that it would be better to follow the others of the family, for I know how deadly Cancer is, especially when inherited. I was advised to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), which, from the first day, checked the progress of the disease, and the second day, it was gone. It has remained gone ever since. I was cured sound and well, and have had no symptoms of the dreadful affliction, though many years have elapsed. S. S. S. is the only cure for Cancer."—Mrs. S. M. Idol, Winston, N. C.

OLD SOL IS SHRINKING.

When the Sun Dies, the Earth Will Freeze.

Our sun is now a yellow star similar to Capella, and hence it will eventually become bluish-white like Sirius and Vega, says Prof. T. J. J. See, in the Atlantic. The secular shrinkage of the sun's radius will cause a steady rise in its temperature, and when the body has reached the stage of Sirius, where the temperature is perhaps doubled, the light emitted will become intensely blue. The temperature may be expected to go on rising till a small radius is attained, and finally, when the dense mass, intensely hot, becomes incapable of further shrinkage, there will be an increase in the molecular forces resisting condensation, a cooling will gradually ensue, after which the body will liquefy and then rapidly decline in splendor. The sun will thenceforth be wrapped in everlasting darkness, and the chill of death will overtake the planetary system. A condition of darkness thus follows close upon a period of intense brilliancy, and hence the obscurity of such bodies as the companions of Sirius, Procyon and Algol. The most obscure satellites are thus associated with some of the brightest and most intensely luminous stars in our sky; and here the smaller of the two masses, as in the case of the planets of the solar system, have developed most rapidly.

In view of this approaching extinction of the sun's activity, it becomes a matter of interest to inquire how long its heat will sustain life upon the earth. Though it is difficult to submit the subject to accurate computation, it is easy to see that the exhaustion of the sun's light and heat certainly will not occur for several hundred thousand, and perhaps not for several million years. Thus the ultimate doom of our system need occasion no anxiety among those now living, but the result is philosophically interesting to those who look even millions of years into the future.

As experiment has shown that the sun's vertical rays failing continuously upon the earth, will melt a layer three centimeters in thickness daily, it follows that a similar shell of ice would form over the earth in case the sun's light and heat were cut off; thus in a month the earth would be frozen like the polar regions, and only the deeper bodies of water, containing a great amount of heat, would remain in a liquid state. The oceans themselves would freeze over within a few years at the latest, and the winds and even the tides would cease to agitate the terrestrial globe, which would henceforth spin in its orbit as a rigid lifeless mass.

All persons having claims against the estate of Mr. L. R. Stith, deceased, will please present them personally to me or my attorney, G. E. Coons, for settlement.

3½ times as distant from the planet as the satellite Iapetus, the outermost moon of Saturn heretofore known.

The discovery, like Mrs. Fleming's discovery of stars in recent years,
was made from photographic plates recently received from the observatory at Arequipa, Peru. Prof. Bond, of Harvard observatory, made the last discovery of a satellite of Saturn in 1848. Harvard has thus had the honor of adding Columbus-like, two moons to the ringed planet which has always been such an interesting object to astronomers. Mrs. Fleming, in particular, has been fortunate in her work in connection with the observatory.
She enjoys the high and unique honor of having found four of the nine new stars discovered between 1860 and 1895, and now has added a fifth star to her astronomical crown.

Photography, to which most of the recent discoveries of stars is due, was first employed in 1860 to secure views of the corona during an eclipse of the sun. Whether there may be further discoveries to be made on the outer boundary of the solar system on the vast orbit of Neptune, 20 times farther from the sun than the earth, remains to be seen. The probabilities are against such a supposition. Mr.
Ranney calculated some years ago that a dark body equal to that of the sun in size and only 600 times more remote would probably be overlooked by astronomers, though, of course, the presence of such a vast body would cause inequalities in the movements of others much greater than those which led to the discovery of Uranus and Neptune.

Proctor estimated that in 450,000 years the earth will come abreast of a small, milky way-like cluster of stars which will pass through that mighty zone. Astronomers therefore need not be discouraged through fear that the telescope and the camera will ever reach the limits of absolute discovery and exploration. Their science projects itself through such vast fields of space and aeons of time that it makes the nearest approach to divinity in its concepts of the universe.

GETTING HER LETTERS.

How a Prima Donna Proved Her Right

A distinguished prima donna recently called for her letters at a post office in a provincial town.

"Have you any evidence of identity?" inquired the clerk.

"No. Unfortunately I have left my cards at home. But it's all right, I am Marianne Brandt, the prima donna."

"I'm afraid we must have some other evidence," returned the clerk.
"Any lady could say that."

"Yes, but any lady could not prove
it. Just listen for a moment."

The applicant lifted up her voice and sang a cadenza with such brilliant effect that every door in the neighboring shops opened and 20 heads popped out.

The clerk waited until she had finished. Then he simply said:

"Thank you very much. Here are your letters."—Chicago Journal.

ON THE YUKON.

At the Gold Country in Harvest
Time.

It was just on the eve of harvesting
time when I first visited the creeks.
In a day or two the flow of water from the gulches where the snow lay thickest would make a head sufficient to wash the yellow grain out of the ditches. In the four miles of Eldorado and the ten miles of Bonanza lines of flumes and their dependent sluice-boxes—the lumber for which had been dragged from the Dawson sawmill by husky dogs or cut with whipsaws—formed a network around the string of cabins occupied by claim owners and their workers, and around miles of classed-colored dirt, thawed out in the short winter days, which contained valuable wealth amounting to nearly $10,000,000. The rounded hillsides seemed as bare as the palm of the hand, scarred by broad streaks from top to bottom, showing where firewood and the timber for building the cabins and for keeping up the fires
in the drifts had slid down.

If you descended by the ladders into the holes beside the drifts to the drifts you soon comprehended that reaping the harvest, once you have a claim, is not so easy as picking wild grapes. It is dogged work to hold five days after a day, running the risk of suffocation and drowning, injury to the eyes by smoke and pulling up the dirt, bucketful after bucketful, by means of a windlass, with the thermometer below zero, and your hands and your to cook. In one spot of three or four square feet the nuggets are so thick that you can pick them out by hand as a farmer's boy picks potatoes out of a hill. In juxtaposition there may be as many more square feet which are not considered worth thawing and sluicing; and so the drifts seem like the path of a man trying to make his way to the light in darkness.

A Serious Accident.

Miss Madge Hart, of Rich mond,
Ky., who is a guest at Mrs. Ann E.
Bean's was taking a ride in a cart behind a two-year-old on last Tuesday, the 27th instant. The colt had been driven only a short time but was quite gentle.
Mr. W. E. Bean, the driver, got out to open a gate near the residence leading out to the pike, and instead of clucking to start the colt the young lady gave it a kick with the lines when suddenly it sprang forward and was soon running at full speed. Miss

Hart became frightened turned on the seat and jumped from the vehicle dislocating left ankle and shoulder.

Dr. Shurall was summoned and the young woman is now fast recovering from her injuries. The colt ran into the gate at the pike and was satisfied to stop. Had Miss Hart remained in cart most likely she would have sustained no injuries.
